Our Administrative Law and Government Projects practice specializes in bidding, contractual, regulatory and compliance aspects concerning the relations between companies and the public sector.

Since the 1990s, when the private sector started increasing its participation in areas previously restricted to the government, our Administrative Law and Government Projects practice has been meeting the demand arising from the privatization of state-owned companies and infrastructure services, including ports, highways, railways, and airports.

We also have significant experience in handling matters before regulatory agencies and other inspection and control bodies, such as audit courts and prosecution offices. We have wide experience in both judicial and administrative proceedings.

With the Public Administration entities, our professionals assist in the structuring of bidding notices, privatization processes, preparation and drafting of public-private partnership agreements.

Additionally, we point out the team's performance in matters involving allegations of administrative improbity and anti-corruption legislation, with participation in complex negotiations with the Public Administration to conclude agreements (such as leniency agreements and conduct adjustment terms). We also assist our clients in internal investigations related to Administrative Law issues, along with our Compliance and Investigations area.
