

WHITE-COLLAR CRIMES

Strategic criminal law practice with technical excellence and a multidisciplinary approach

With the proliferation of social conflicts and the sophistication of economic and financial structures, criminal law requires not only technical knowledge but also a strategic and multidisciplinary vision. Therefore, our White-Collar Crimes practice operates at the forefront of corporate criminal law, offering sophisticated, innovative legal solutions that integrate with other areas of law to meet the challenges of an increasingly complex landscape. A pioneer among full-service law firms in developing the Economic Criminal Law practice, our firm represents Brazilian and multinational companies, as well as individuals, in cases involving economic, financial, competition, tax, environmental, and anti-government crimes and money laundering. Our team also has extensive experience in multi-jurisdictional internal investigations, executive training, and the creation and implementation of anti-money laundering programs. Led by Isadora Fingermann, a professional with a solid track record in criminal litigation in state, federal, Superior Court of Justice (STJ), and Supreme Federal Court (STF), the department combines technical excellence, dynamism, and combativeness. The accumulated experience in high-profile national police operations reinforces the team's ability to defend defendants and represent crime victims with agility, thoroughness, and commitment.
